Tell the decision makers: No unnecessary gas pipelines — choose renewable energy instead!

Tennessee does not need new gas pipelines because TVA should choose to replace its closing coal plants with cheaper and cleaner electricity that doesn't destroy private property, streams and wetlands. Those unnecessary gas projects would raise our electric bills and put our communities at risk of harm from leaks and explosions while hardly adding any permanent jobs to the area. The use of eminent domain for the purpose of advancing the interests of private gas corporations is wrong. I urge you to choose cheaper, cleaner, renewable energy instead of these unnecessary, costly, and dangerous pipelines.
